

Join the National Food Law Student Network for our Fall Engagement Event!

CELL-CULTURED MEAT PANEL

REGULATION,
INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY,
AND BUSINESS VENTURES

October 24th | 7:00pm ET | Virtual

RSVP here to join!

JOIN THE NATIONAL FOOD LAW STUDENT NETWORK FOR AN ENGAGING PANEL DISCUSSION ABOUT CELL-CULTURED MEAT!

THIS PANEL EXPLORES THE COMPLEX ISSUES SURROUNDING CELL-CULTURED MEAT, INCLUDING THE LEGAL AND ETHICAL DIMENSIONS, INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY CONSIDERATIONS, AND THE BROADER DEBATES THAT SHAPE THE FUTURE OF FOOD PRODUCTION.

Our esteemed panelists bring a diverse range of expertise to this conversation:

Alexandra Spring is an attorney in Montpelier, Vermont. She is a Policy Adviser of Slow Food USA, and the Vermont chapter's Policy Coordinator. Her ethos centers on food systems that respect ecosystems, diverse human cultures, and the dignity of sentient beings. She is the co-author of What's the Beef? Debates over cell-cultured meat for the CAFS Labels Unwrapped series.

David Postolski, a senior partner at Gearhart Law, is a registered patent attorney and Intellectual property (IP) attorney. David specializes in assisting inventors, creators, artists, start-ups, entrepreneurs, early-stage companies, and emerging companies with their U.S and international IP strategy, protection, enforcement, and monetization. David is a Professor at Temple University, Parsons School of Design and the Radzyner Law School (Herzliya, Israel) where he teaches master-level students about IP, ethics, and other regulatory considerations. David currently serves on Harvard's Lemann Entrepreneurial Program Advisory Board.

Marc Shelley graduated from University of Texas School of Law and went to work at the law firm of Shook, Hardy & Bacon practicing product liability litigation in the fast-moving consumer good space. After 13 years, he went in-house at Anheuser-Busch InBev in New York where he was the global head of litigation, intellectual property and crisis management. Just this past summer, Marc took his experience in the food and beverage space and became the Chief Legal Officer of Believer Meats, which is a cultivated meat company in the U.S. and Israel.

DON'T MISS THIS OPPORTUNITY TO GAIN INSIGHT INTO THE FUTURE OF LAW AND INNOVATIVE FOOD TECHNOLOGIES!

RSVP to join!